

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. PREFACE.

THIS work is designed as a Dictionary of American and English Initials and Pseudonyms employed from the beginning of the 18th century to the present time; to which have been added some of the more recent and important Continental ones, and a few false-names, which, by a strict definition of words, would be called sobriquets.

A similar work by Mr. Albert R. Frey, of the Astor Library, New York City, was placed by the publishers at the writer's disposal, from which about two thousand titles were taken, and added to his own compilation, making an aggregate of twelve thousand initials and pseudonyms, and eight thousand real names of authors.

Attention is called to the very complete article, by Mr. Frey, on "Junius," to be found in the first part.

For the convenience of those using this dictionary, it may be well to state that the first part gives the initials and pseudonyms, followed by the real names, of the authors, together with some representative literary performance; and the method used in indexing, with some exceptions, is to treat the literary disguises as real names, and arrange them as is customary with the latter, i.e., the last member of the initial or pseudonym is put first, and determines the alphabetical order. The second part contains the real names of authors, followed by the initials and pseudonyms, and short biographical notices.

The writer has endeavored to make this work both comprehensive and correct, and, in order to do this, has availed himself of the Harvard University Library, and every other source of information to which the kindness of those interested in the undertaking has given him access, and believes he has been enabled to produce a volume that will be useful to librarians and of interest to the general reader.

Notification of errors or omissions, or any information that would add to the value of the work, will be gladly received by the undersigned.

WILLIAM CUSHING.

Anti-Socinus. Anselm Bayly. Remarks on David Levi's second letter to Dr. Priestley . . . By . . . L. 1787.

Anti-Stuart. One of the pseudonyms attributed to Junius (q.v.).

This letter, contributed to "The Public Advertiser," and dated March 24, 1768, is a reply to a letter signed "Anti van Teague," the author of which had defended the grant to Sir James Lowther. That signature seems to indicate that "Junius" was supposed to be an Irishman, and Mr. Burke. "Junius" signs "Anti Stuart" in reference to John Stuart, Earl of Bute, whose daughter Sir James Lowther had married. He then attacks the public character of the Duke of Grafton, the Prime Minister, and says he had not meddled with his private character, which he left for the Duke to earth in, whenever he is hard run, "according to the laudable example" of Lord North. — WARD.

Anti-theatricus. Thady Fitzpatrick. — See "T. F."

Bavius. Dr. John Martyn. Memoirs of the Society of Grub-Street. L. 1737.

These memoirs commenced on Thursday, Jan. 8, 1730, were continued once a week, and attained their 138th (and last) number on Aug. 24, 1732. To this publication we owe the "Gentleman's Magazine"; for Cave projected an improvement on it to be published once a month. The signature of "Bavius" belongs to Dr. John Martyn, and that of "Mævius" to Dr. Richard Russell; and those papers signed "A" are by Alexander Pope. But in Carruthers' "Life of Pope" (1837) it is conjectured that Pope had free admission to the journal under any guise, and that some signed "M" and "B" are by him, and also that there were other contributors. — HALKETT AND LAING.

Bell, Currer. Mrs. Charlotte (Brontë) Nicholls. Jane Eyre: an autobiography. L. 1847.

When the Brontë sisters published their volume of poetry in 1846, under their respective pseudonyms, numerous parties made the mistake of thinking that they were three brothers. Among others was Miss Martineau, who addressed a letter to Charlotte Brontë,—"Currer Bell, Esq."

"Averse to publicity, we veiled our own names under those of Currer, Ellis, and Acton Bell; the ambiguous choice being dictated by a sort of conscientious scruple of assuming Christian names positively masculine, while we did not declare ourselves women, because—without at the time suspecting that our mode of writing and thinking was not what is called 'feminine,'—we had a vague impression that authoresses are liable to be looked on with prejudice."—GASKELL, Life of Brontë (1868), p. 240.

"Elizabeth Sheppard (E. Berger) wrote three novels, viz., 'Charles Auchester,' 'Counterparts,' and 'Rumor.' Beethoven figures in 'Rumor' under the name of Rodomant, Porphyro represents Napoleon III., and Diamond Albany is intended for Diraell. In 'Charles Auchester' Mendelssohn's sister Fanny is Cecilia. The other chief characters in the book were given correctly in 'Transcript' of April 28, 1884, the mistake being in not designating which belonged to 'Charles Auchester' and which to 'Rumor.' In the 'Atlantic Monthly,' June, 1882, will be found an article of some length upon Miss Sheppard and her works."

Eliot, George. Mrs. Marian (Evans

Leaves) Cross. Scenes of clerical life, 1858; Adam Bede, 1858. L. and Edinb.

"Nor can we omit, in concluding this notice of a most remarkable book, some notice of the disputes as to its authorship. The newspapers have been full of them. Mr. Anders, rector of Kirkby, writes early in April of this year to assure the world that 'the author of Adam Bede is Mr. Liggins, of Nuneston, Warwickshire, and the characters whom he paints in Scenes of Clerical Life, are as familiar there as the twin spires of Coventry.' But just as we have satisfied our minds that this is the true state of the case, and are feeling greatly obliged to Mr. Anders, a wrathful letter from 'George Eliot' disturbs us; asking (not unreasonably) whether 'the act of publishing a book deprives a man of all claim to the courtesies usual amongst gentlemen' . . . Then some gentleman is 'receiving subscriptions' as the ill-used author of Adam Bede. Finally, the Messrs. Blackwood, turning at last to throw a stone, declare that, 'those works are not written by Mr. Liggins, or by any one with a name like Liggins' . . . Now, upon all this we have only to remark, that we cordially agree in the dictum of Mr. Eliot, that 'the attempt to pry into what is obviously meant to be withheld,—his name,—is quite indefensible.'—Edinb. Rev., 1856.

Feardana. Robert Dwyer Joyce, M.D.

About twenty years ago the nom de plume "Feardana" was a household word among the reading portion of the Irish people. It was the veil behind which the young poet modestly hid his individuality. He was then a medical student at the Queen's University. The "Harp" and other periodicals published in Dublin and Cork at this time, and for several years, contained patriotic songs, short sketches, and historic ballads from his pen. "The Blacksmith of Limerick," which he wrote in the confused days succeeding '48, grew almost instantly into popular favor, and helped much to create and foster a new soul in Ireland. About that time, perhaps later, the "London Universal News," then edited by the lamented John F. O'Donnell ("Caviare"), a distinguished poet and litterateur himself, in reviewing Joyce's "Ballads, Romances, and Songs"—published in book form by Duffy of Dublin—hailed Joyce as "The Scott of Ireland," a distinctive title most eminently deserved and deservedly bestowed. The book attained an extensive circulation, especially in the south of Ireland, where were located most of the stirring scenes, and incidents, and legendary and traditional reminiscences on which the "Ballads, Romances, and Songs" were founded. There is little doubt that Joyce's writings at that period had a powerful influence in developing the national spirit which, a few years later on, became so powerful and defiant under the name of "Fenianism," the spirit of physical resistance to foreign rule. The "Dublin Weekly Illustrated News," established less than 20 years ago, contained many a racy story, sketch, and poem from his pen. A little later the doctor, who was then Professor of English Literature in the Preparatory College of the Catholic University, Dublin, published "The Squire of Castleton," an historical novel, the scene of which was laid in the south of Ireland, as a serial in the "Dublin Irishman." It was subsequently republished in book form. When the "Dublin Irish People," the Fenian organ, was established in 1866, Dr. Joyce, under the nom de plume "Merula" (the Wizard) became, by request of the leaders of the National party in Dublin, one of the regular contributors, and his fiery, patriotic, and able pen was recognized as a powerful aid in sustaining the grand spirit of patriotic resolve which was then rampant and defiant throughout the land.

H. D. B. William Hamper, Esq., F.S.A.

"His earlier productions were poetical pieces, which were generally communicated to the pages of this ('Gent. Mag.') miscellany. The first of these we believe to have been the lines entitled 'The Beggar Boy,' in our number for September, 1793. In the following number is a more lively and spirited production, an anti-revolutionary song, beginning, 'To learn Johnny Bull & le mode de Paris'; and, as a clever piece written with the same loyal and constitutional feelings, may be mentioned a 'Pindaric Address,' in January, 1801. These and many others are signed 'H. D. B.,'—the initials of Hamper, Deritend, Birmingham. He also uses the signature 'M.R.' (the final letters of his name) in 'Gent. Mag.,' March, 1811, September, 1816, and April, 1817."

Hermit of Marlow, The. Percy Bysshe Shelley. We pity the plumage, but forget the dying bird . . . n.p., 1817.

"This is one of Shelley's most interesting tracts, and was printed and circulated for political purposes. The death of the Princess happened just at the time of the execution of Brandreth, Turner, and Ludlam, and afforded Shelley an opportunity of drawing a comparison between the two events, in which he displays such an amount of feeling as is seldom exhibited by one fellow-creature towards another, and in which some bitter attacks on the Government are not sparingly put forth. It is probable that the tract was suppressed on account of these remarks, which occasions its great rarity. Thos. Rodd, the eminent bookseller, soon after issued a reprint, consisting of a very limited number of copies."

Jean Jacques. Jean Jacques Rousseau.

Jean Paul. Jean Paul Friedrich Richter, in his earlier publications.

"But I return to our history and place myself amongst the dead, for all are out of the world who saw me come into it. My father was called John Christian Christopher Richter, and was Tertius (master of the third class at a gymnasium) and organist in Wunsiedel. My mother, who was the daughter of the cloth-weaver, John Paul Kuhn, in Hof, was named Sophia Rosina. The day after my birth I was baptized by the senior Apel. One godfather was the above-mentioned John Paul, and the other John Frederic Theime, a book-binder, who did not know at that time to what quantities of his own handicraft he lent his name. From these two sponsors was the name of Jean Paul Frederic shot together. The grandfatherly half I translated into Jean Paul, and have thereby gained a name, the reasons for which shall be fully made known in future lectures."—Autobiography.

I call him frequently Jean Paul, without adding his surname, both because all Germany gives him that appellation, as an expression of affection for his person, and because he has himself sometimes assumed it in the title-pages to his works.—DEQUINCEY.

Junius. — See p. 145.

"At the time when the 'Letters' appeared, pamphlets abounded, fixing their authorship, to the perfect satisfaction of each pamphleteer, upon every public man; the 'Gent. Mag.' opened its columns to suggestions, and was filled with them; in 1824, the 'Monthly Magazine' renewed the subject; in 1837, pamphlets again appeared, with fresh lights, which flickered and went out; and lately, 'Notes and Queries' has worked like a mole on the subject; but they all have been gropings in the dark. We believe the 'Letters' have been fathered, with a greater or less degree of confidence, upon upwards of forty public characters. The most favoured were Sir Philip Francis, Lord Lyttelton, Colonel Barré, Burke, J. Dunning (afterwards Lord Ashburton), Chatham, Dr. Willmott, Hugh Boyd, Wilkes, Horne Tooke, Lord George Sackville, Governor Pownall, Sir G. Jackson, Maclean, and Dr. Sidney Swinney. The wildest conjectures have gained believers, and there have been madmen to lay them to George III., a Captain Allen, Suett the comedian, Combe (the author of 'Dr. Syntax'), Bickerton, an eccentric Oxonian, and an utterly unknown Mr. Jones. Who this famous writer was, will be a question asked by generations to follow us." — See ANDREWS'S British Journalism, Vol. I., p. 185.

"Numerous were the disputants who, emulating the fame of Junius, now rushed into the lists with high-sounding Roman names. Marcus Antonius, Scipio, Brutus, Cato, Valerius, Virgilius, played the buffoon in the 'Evening Post,' and thought they were dividing the laurels with the great gladiator of the 'Public Advertiser'; but they were Romans only in name, — Grubstreet claimed them for its own. Crabbe has had his laugh at them in his poem of 'The Newspaper':—

"These Roman souls, like Rome's great sons, are known
To live in cells on labours of their own;

Thus Milo, could we see the noble chief,
Feeds, for his country's good, on legs of beef;
Camillus copies deeds for sordid pay,
Yet fights the public battles twice a day!
E'en now, the godlike Brutus views his score Scroll'd on the bar board, swinging with the door,
Where, tipping punch, grave Cato's self you'll see,
And Amor Patriæ vending smuggled tea."

THE LETTERS OF “JUNIUS.”

It is not my intention—and, even did I wish to do so, the limits of the present work forbid it—to give a complete history of these celebrated letters. The subject has been practically exhausted in the many excellent editions quoted hereafter, and I shall confine myself to the following statistics:—

I. The date of appearance of the letters signed “Junius,” together with a list of the other signatures employed by this writer; to which latter pseudonyms, cross-references will be found scattered throughout this work.

II. A list of all the claimants to the authorship, with the respective merits of each.

III. A bibliography of the subject.

IV. Miscellaneous notes, etc.

I. The letters signed “Junius” appeared in the “Public Advertiser” of the following dates:—

Nov. 21, 1768.	Sept. 7, 1769.
Jan. 21, 1769.	Sept. 19, 1769.
Feb. 7, 1769.	Sept. 25, 1769.
Feb. 21, 1769.	Oct. 13, 1769.
Mar. 3, 1769.	Oct. 17, 1769.
Mar. 18, 1769.	Oct. 20, 1769.
Apr. 10, 1769.	Nov. 15, 1769.
Apr. 21, 1769.	(See “Modestus.”)
Apr. 24, 1769.	Nov. 29, 1769.
May 30, 1769.	Dec. 12, 1769.
July 8, 1769.	Dec. 19, 1769.

II. The following list of 51 names, embraces the personages to whom these celebrated letters have been attributed. The Roman numerals appended to the notes indicate the corresponding work in the bibliography (Part III.).

Adair, James, M.P., Serjeant at Law. d. 1798.

A Mr. Sergeant Adair was once produced, on the plea of certain ephemeral pamphlets, but the feebleness they evinced caused him to be quickly given up. — WADDE, "Junius," ii. xv.

The reader should also consult the lengthy argument of Mr. Adair against granting a motion proposed in favor of the messengers of the House of Commons, and the reference to this case in Junius' letter of April 9, 1771.

Allen, Captain. — See "Notes and Queries," 1st Ser., xi. 302.

Barré, Lieut.-Col. Isaac, M.P.

In the works by Britton and Jaques (Nos. LXXXV. and LXXXVI.), I find the opinion expressed that Barré was aided by Lord Shelburne and Dunning (afterwards Lord Ashburton). The "Morning Herald," as early as 1813, stated that the Earl of Shelburne was probably Junius, and that Barré and Dunning assisted him.

For the claims advanced in favor of and against Barré, see Jaques' work, p. 141, Allibone, Britton, Wade, ii. xxix. and No. LXXXVI.

Bentlnck, William Henry Cavendish.

His name is mentioned in Coventry's "Critical Enquiry" (see No. LXXI.).

Bickerton, Mr.

In the "Oxford Spy" (Oxf.), 1818, p. 24, will be found a notice of this eccentric individual, who is said to have kept a horse in Hertford College, Oxford, which was sometimes seen looking out of a window on the second floor. For additional information, see "Notes and Queries," 1st Ser., xi. 370.

Boyd, Hugh M'Anlay. b. 1746; d. 1791.

Boyd's claims are summarily disposed of in Wade's work (No. LXXXVII.). Almon, in the first volume of "Anecdotes," published in 1797, designates Boyd as the author of Junius. See also Wrexall, "Memoirs of his own Time," 1836, ii. 93-94, and Nos. XXX., XXXIII., XLIX., LI.

Boyd has been described as "an admirer of Junius, and vain enough to wish to be thought the author."

As to Macanlay Boyd's being the author of Junius' Letters, it is a perfect joke; no two characters can be more perfectly unlike than Boyd and Junius. — BUTLER, "Reminiscences," i. 64.

Burke, Rt. Hon. Edmund. b. 1728; d. 1797.

Bishop Markham, an early friend and patron of Burke, taxed the latter with the authorship of the "Letters," telling him that his house was a "nest of adders." Although Burke never made any positive denial to this imputation, he certainly disavowed any connection with Junius, on three distinct occasions. Firstly, he said to Charles Townshend, "I give you my word and honour that I am not the author of Junius." — See Burke's "Correspondence," by Lord Fitzwilliam, i. 269-275. Secondly, he positively denied the imputed authorship, on being questioned by Sir William Draper; and lastly, he made a denial to Johnson, when he said, "I could not if I would, and I would not if I could." — See Roswell's "Johnson," iv., for the detailed circumstances.

It seems somewhat strange, however, that Burke should have been so generally suspected as the author. That such was the case, nevertheless, is obvious, not only from the opinion at first entertained by Sir William Draper, but from various public accusations conveyed in the periodicals of the day. The letter of Zeno in the "Public Advertiser," dated Oct. 15, 1771, is addressed "to Junius, alias Edmund the Jesuit of St. Omer's."

See also Wade's edition of Woodfall, ii., xxvii. 138, and Nos. XXXVIII., LXII., LXIV., and LXXXVI.

Burke, William. — See No. LXXXVI.

Butler, John, Bishop of Hereford. d. 1802.

Butler was secretary to the Rt. Hon. William Legge, Chancellor of the Exchequer, and Wilkes is said to have suspected him as the author. Butler, however, was a man of no political courage, and his works lack the fire which characterize the "Letters." His claims are discussed in Dr. Good's Essay, in the edition published in 1814.

Camden, Charles, Lord. b. 1718; d. 1794.

It appears almost ludicrous to note that the great Lord Camden was suspected, simply on the ground of his dislike to the law and politics of Chief Justice Mansfield. — WADDE.

De Lolme, John Lewis. b. 1745 (?); d. 1807.

De Lolme's claims are advocated in Dr. Busby's work (see No. XLVI.), but it must be remembered that he only arrived in England in 1769. He is the author of an elegantly written "Essay on the English Constitution," which is quoted by Junius.

Dunning, John, afterwards Lord Ashburton. b. 1731; d. 1783.

The soul of Junius is, as we conjecture, commemorated in the picture exhibited in Sir Joshua Reynolds's gallery, representing Lord Shelburne of Junius's day, Mr. Dunning, and Colonel Barré of parliamentary fame, in conference. — JAQUES, p. 141. (See Barré, ante.)

Heron espouses the claims of Dunning, and Britton includes him among his claimants; but a very strong point against him is the fact that he was appointed solicitor-general in December, 1767, and held that office until March, 1770. Hence, admitting that he was Junius, the famous letter "to the king," in December, 1769, must have proceeded from his Majesty's own solicitor-general! The Earl of Shelburne, who was intimately acquainted with Dunning, often declared that the latter did not "write a line of Junius."

Dyer, Samuel. b. 1725; d. 1772.

Dyer is referred to in Malone's "Life of Dryden," as "a man of excellent taste and profound erudition, whose principal literary work, under a Roman signature, when the veil with which for near thirty-six years it has been enveloped shall be removed, will place him in a high rank among English writers, and transmit a name now little known, with distinguished lustre to posterity."

Malone held the opinion that if Burke did not write the Letters, they were at least written by some one who had received considerable aid from Burke in composing them. It is said that upon Dyer's death, Burke obtained and destroyed all the papers which he had left behind him.

Malone strongly favored the claims of Dyer, but it must be remembered that this claimant was a very old man at the time when these letters appeared, a fact inconsistent with the vigor and fire they exhibit.

See also Dr. Good's Essay, and "Notes and Queries," 2d Ser., ix. 261.

Flood, Henry. b. 1732; d. 1791.

For extensive criticisms in favor of and against the claims of this Irish orator, the reader is referred to Dr. Good's Essay, Wade i. 79 (No. LXXVII.), and "Notes and Queries," 2d Ser., viii. 101, 189, 259.

Francis, Sir Philip. b. 1740; d. 1818.

The external evidence is, we think, such as would support a verdict in a civil, nay, in a criminal proceeding. The handwriting of Junius is the very peculiar handwriting of Francis, slightly disguised. As to the position, pursuits, and connections of Junius, the following are the most important facts which can be considered as clearly proved: First, that he was acquainted with the technical forms of the secretary of state's office; secondly, that he was intimately acquainted with the business of the War-office; thirdly, that he, during the year 1770, attended debates in the House of Lords, and took notes of speeches, particularly of the speeches of Lord Chatham; fourthly, that he bitterly resented the appointment of Mr. Chamier to the place of deputy-secretary of war; fifthly, that he was bound by some strong tie to the first Lord Holland. Now, Francis passed some years in the secretary of state's office. He was subsequently chief clerk of the War-office. He repeatedly mentioned that he had himself, in 1770, heard speeches of Lord Chatham; and some of these speeches were actually printed from his notes. He resigned his clerkship at the War-office from resentment at the appointment of Mr. Chamier. It was by Lord Holland that he was first introduced into the public service. Now, here are five marks, all of which ought to be found in Junius. They are all five found in Francis. We do not believe that more than two of them can be found in any other person whatever. If this argument does not settle the question, there is an end of all reasoning on circumstantial evidence. — MACAULAY.

My own impression is that the "Letters of Junius" were written by Sir Philip Francis. In a speech which I once heard him deliver at the Mansion House, concerning the partition of Poland, I had a striking proof that Francis possessed no ordinary powers of eloquence. — ROBERTS, "Table Talk," p. 272.

I have inserted the foregoing quotations, to indicate what has been said in favor of Francis' claims; if the reader is curious enough to pursue the subject more extensively, he will find a chapter on the disputed question in the "Memoirs of Sir Philip Francis," by Parkes and Merivale, L. 1867, i. 223-303. See also Taylor's works, Nos. XL and XLVIII.; Wade, ii. xxx.-xc., No. LXXVII.; "Notes and Queries," 1st Ser., xi. 117, and Nos. LXV., LXVI., LXVII., LXXVIII., XC.

The following letter, taken from the "Athensum," March 16, 1861, may be of interest in this place:—

MY DEAR PARKES,—

I have often tried to guess the meaning of the motto to Junius, "Stat nominis umbra," "The shadow of the name stands." But in looking, the other day, at the title-page of the "Etymologicon Anglicanum," I thought that I could guess the meaning. The title is,—

Franciscus Junii
Francisci Filii
Etymologicon
Anglicanum.

And under the frontispiece are these words:—

Franciscus Junius,
Francisci Filius.

We know that Sir P. Francis often gave obscure hints as to his authorship of Junius. I think that by the words, "Stat nominis umbra," he meant to indicate that Junius was the son of Francis. This may seem far-fetched; but what other explanation of the motto can you give? My explanation is that he meant to establish a claim to the authorship, without being forced to make that claim; which, in fact, he never had the courage to do.

N. W. SENIOR.

Taylor, in Woodfall's edition of 1812, was the first person who fixed upon Francis as the author; but he fell into one of the snares which Junius had adroitly laid for enquirers. Misled "by one of those well-contrived feints that were meant to mislead," Mr. Taylor inferred that Junius must be a person of advanced years, and fixed upon the Rev. Philip Francis, the father of Sir Philip, as the author. The elder Francis was a fine classical scholar, celebrated for his masterly translations of Horace and Demosthenes; but when Mr. Taylor discovered him to be ten years older than he had at first been led to believe, he devoted all his attention toward proving the claims of the younger man, and embodied his researches in a subsequent volume.

ADVERSE CRITICISMS UPON FRANCIS' CLAIMS.

Sir Nathaniel Wraxall is convinced that Sir Philip Francis was the author of Junius. I do not yet believe it. He was too vain a man to let the secret die with him. — SIR ROBERT BRYDGES' "Notes on Wraxall's Memoirs."

I persist in thinking that neither Mr. Burke nor Philip Francis was the author of the letters under the signature of Junius. I think the mind of the first so superior, and the mind of the latter so inferior, to that of Junius, as to put the supposition that either of them was Junius wholly out of the question. — MR. CHARLES BURLEN's Letter to Mr. E. H. Barker, June 14, 1823.

We must all grant that a strong case has been made out for Francis; but I could set up very stout objections to those claims. It was not in his nature to keep a secret. He would have told it from vanity, or from his courage, or from his patriotism. His bitterness, his vivacity, his acuteness, are stamped, in characters very peculiar, upon many publications that bear his name; and very faint indeed is their resemblance to the spirit, and, in an extended sense of the word, to the style, of Junius. — DR. FARR.

With reference to the claims of Sir Philip, I am inclined to use the form of argument called a "dilemma." Thus, if Sir Philip Francis was the author of the letters, he was a scurrilous libeller; if he was not, he was splendide mendax, — utrum horum moris accipie. — JOHN WILKINS, in 1835.

Francis' claims are also adversely discussed in Fellows' "The Posthumous Works of Junius," No. LXVII.; Jaques, p. 173, No. LXXV.; "Notes and Queries," 2d Ser., vi. 43; 3d Ser., viii. 13.

356, xl. 102; 4th Ser., xl. 130, 178, 202, 243, 387, 425, 465, 512, xli. 33, 69, 81; and Nos. LIV., LVIII., LXIV., LXXXVII.

George III., King of England.

"Ma'am Serres condemns all aspirers to pot
That prate of a Junius, since Uncle Wilmot Ranks scribe of each letter she dares pledge her word,
As sure as not one came from King George the Third."

See Ireland's poem, "Scribbleomania," p. 306, for a curious note on this subject.

Gibbon, Edward. b. 1787; d. 1794.

This claimant, beyond holding a position, does not seem to have distinguished himself to any extent in the politics of his day, his mind being too absorbed in the great task which has made him famous. See Nos. LII., LIV.

Glover, Richard. b. 1712; d. 1785.

Johnston declares that he has no faith in the claim of Glover, although his advocates, as corroborative facts, assert that he "wore a bag, with his wig accurately dressed, and carried a small cocked hat under his arm, before the year 1776, and in this costume constantly walked, in fine weather, from his house in St. James Street, in Westminster, into the city"; this fact being brought forward in proof of his being identical with the "tall gentleman" who threw the letter into Mr. Woodfall's office in Ivy Lane.

Wraxall, in his "Memoirs of his own Time," 1836, ii. 97, states that Glover's son assured him that "he had not the least reason to suppose or to believe that his father composed the letters of Junius." See Nos. XLI., XLII.

Grattan, Henry. b. 1750; d. 1820.

Grattan's claims were advocated by R. Perry in 1801; in the 1806 edition of the "Letters," published by Almon, the compiler says that it was supposed by some that Grattan and Maclean were the joint authors. Mr. Almon addressed a letter of inquiry to the Irish patriot, which evoked the following reply:—

SIR,—I frankly assure you that I know nothing of Junius, except that I am not the author. When Junius began I was a boy, and knew nothing of politics, or the persons concerned in them. I am, Sir, not Junius, but your very good wisher and obedient servant, Dublin, Nov. 4, 1806. H. GRATTAN.

Greatrakes, William. b. 1729; d. 1781.

This claimant is brought forward in the "Gent. Mag." for December, 1813, lxxxiii. 547; in Coventry's "Critical Enquiry," No. LXI.; and in Wraxall's "Memoirs."

Greatrakes, a native of Ireland, died suddenly at Hungerford, on his way from Bristol to London, and was buried there, with the words "stat nominis umbra" inscribed on his tombstone. As this motto figures on the "Junius" title-page, it is easy to imagine how he comes to be classed among the claimants. Britton undertakes to prove that Greatrakes was the amanuensis employed by Junius to copy his letters for the "Public Advertiser"; "but it ought first to be shown," says Wade, "that Junius employed an amanuensis. If he did, and Greatrakes was his penman, it could hardly give him a claim to the motto of his principal. That was a distinction, which, if it has any significance, could be applicable only to the shadow of a shade that wrote the letters, not the copyist of them."

Grenville, George. b. 1712; d. 1770.

The prime-minister died before the letters were discontinued, hence but little attention need be paid to his claims.

Grenville, James. d. 1783.

He was the brother of the preceding, and Lord of the Treasury. Although he has been accused of the authorship, he himself established no claims to the honor.

Hamilton, William Gerard. b. 1729; d. 1796.

This claimant is mentioned in Dr. Good's essay; and a letter in the "Public Advertiser" of Nov. 30, 1771, is addressed to William Junius Singlespeech, Esq. Fox said, that, although he would not back Hamilton against the field, he would back him against any single claimant; and Wraxall declares, that, "throughout the various companies in which, from 1776 down to the present time, I have heard this mysterious question agitated, the great majority concurred in giving to Hamilton the merit of composing the 'Letters' under examination." Mrs. Piozzi and Samuel Johnson were both inclined to believe in his claims.

The only reason that appears for these letters ever having been attributed to Hamilton was that he happened to be aware of the context of a letter which did not make its appearance until the following day. (For a full account of this curious story, the reader is referred to "Notes and Queries," 2d Ser., vi. 44.)

The arguments against him are four in number, and very conclusive:—

1. He was Chancellor of the Exchequer in Ireland from September, 1769, to April, 1764,—the period when all the letters appeared.

2. When questioned on the subject, by Earl Temple, he positively denied the authorship. See Dr. Good's "Essay," p. 56.

3. Woodfall declared that neither Burke nor Hamilton were responsible for the Letters.

4. Hamilton again distinctly denied the authorship, just before his death, when questioned by a member of the House of Commons.

Hollis, James.

He is referred to, as a claimant, by Wade and Allibone.

Hollis, Thomas. b. 1720; d. 1774.

Alluded to in Coventry's "Critical Enquiry," No. LXI.

Jackson, Sir George, Secretary of the Admiralty.

For an account of the claims advanced in his favor, see "Notes and Queries," 1st Ser., i. 172, 376, 322.

Jones, Sir William. b. 1746; d. 1794.

Mentioned, as a claimant, by Coventry and Wade.

Kent, John. d. 1773.

Kent wished to pass for Junius; but, according to Almon, he was only a newspaper editor, at a small weekly salary. See the "Letter" dated July 21, 1769, in which Junius refers to this personage.

Lee, Maj.-Gen. Charles. b. 1731; d. 1782.

In 1803, Gen. Lee is said to have acknowledged himself the author. If the reader is desirous of seeing some curious evidence against the claimant, he is referred to Wade, i. 61-67.

While Girdlestone (Nos. XXXIII. and XXXVII.) as effectively espoused his claims.

Lloyd, Charles. d. 1778.

Lloyd was the private secretary to George Grenville, and among those who believed in his claims was Dr. Parr. It must not, however, be forgotten, that this claimant died, an old man, just after the letters had ceased, which fact is scarcely in harmony with the spirit they exhibit. See the interesting book by Mr. Barker, Nos. LXIII., LXIV.; also Jaques' work, 147-171, No. LXXV.

Lyttleton, Thomas, 2d Lord. b. 1744; d. 1779.

Mr. Dilke, in his "Papers of a Critic," vol. II., and Mr. Thoms, in "Notes and Queries," 1st Ser., xl. 198, have shown that Lyttleton no longer deserves a place among the Junius claimants.

See also "Notes and Queries," 1st Ser., viii. 31; "Littell's Living Age," xiii. 223; and the "Quarterly Review," xc. 91.

Maclean, Laughlin. b. 1727; d. 1777.

This claimant had been under-secretary of state during Lord Shelburne's possession of the office for the southern department. (See Junius' "Letter," of date March 6, 1771.) During the years 1769 and 1770, when Junius was most active, Mr. Maclean "was absorbed in his own pecuniary difficulties consequent on gambling in India stock"; and in 1772 he was acting as collector in the city of Philadelphia in this country, while the "Letters" were still appearing in England. See Galt, "Life of West." Almon, in 1800, thought that he was a joint-author with Grattan. Twenty-two arguments have been published in favor of Maclean, in "Waldie's (P.) Library," edited by John Jay Smith. See also "Notes and Queries," 2d Ser., vii. 310.

Marshall, Rev. Edmund. d. 1797.

This gentleman, vicar of Charing, in Kent, occasionally wrote political letters in the "Kentish Gazette," over the pseudonym of "Cantianus." His claims are referred to in Nichols' "Literary Illustrations of the Eighteenth Century," viii. 680.

Paine, Thomas. b. 1737; d. 1809.

See No. LXXXIX. The audacity of the author of this work is my apology for its insertion.

Pitt, William, Earl of Chatham. b. 1708; d. 1778.

Chatham could not very well have been Junius, as the latter was very anxious to obtain duplicate proofs from the printer to forward to Pitt (see the "Chatham Papers," p. 52), and the celebrated letter to Lord Mansfield, it is well known, was sent to Chatham some days before it was printed. Moreover, Pitt, "though most effective in oratory, was careless in literary composition; inexact, loose, and repetitious: very unlike Junius, who not only polished his public letters to the highest finish, but never let the most brief or trivial private note escape him unmarked by the hand of a master." See also "Notes and Queries," 3d Ser., viii. 356, 440, and Nos. XXXIV., LXX., LXXI., LXXII., LXXIII., LXXIV.

Portland, William, Duke of. b. 1738; d. 1809.

See Mr. Johnston's work, No. XLVII., in which the author argues that the principal object of the "Letters" was the restoration of the estate of the Duke of Portland, part of which had been taken from him in 1767 and granted to Sir James Lowther, who had married Lord Bute's daughter.

Pownall, Thomas. b. 1722; d. 1805.

— See No. LXXXIV.

Rich, Lieut.-Col., Sir Robert. — See No. LXXXIII.

Roberts, John. d. 1772.

This gentleman was anonymously accused of having written the Letters in the "Public Advertiser," March 21, 1772, et passim. He died July 13, 1772, before the Junius Letters were discontinued.

Rosenhagen, Rev. Philip.

Upon the authority of Gerard Hamilton, it is related by Almon that Rosenhagen endeavored to obtain a pension from Lord North, by stipulating that Junius (he himself) should write no more. But there is no similarity in the handwriting of this claimant to that of Junius, and, moreover, Rosenhagen being of foreign extraction, could hardly be master of the idiomatic phraseology that Junius had at his command. See also "Notes and Queries," 3d Ser., v. 16.

Sackville, George, Viscount. b. 1716; d. 1785.

Dr. Good, in his preliminary essay to Woodfall's edition of 1812, states that "Sir William Draper divided his suspicions between this nobleman and Mr. Burke, and upon the personal and unequivocal denial of the latter, he transferred them entirely to the former: and that Sir William was not the only person who suspected his lordship even from the first, is evident from the private letter of Junius, which asserts that Swinney had actually called upon Lord Sackville and taxed him with being Junius, to his face." (See Private Letter, 5.)

Sackville on one occasion observed to a friend, "I should be proud to be capable of writing as Junius has done; but there are many passages in his letters I should be very sorry to have written." His lordship, moreover, was afterward created Lord George Germaine, a favorite of George III., and unlikely to be his accuser. See also Chalmers, "Appendix to the Supplemental Apology," p. 7 (No. XXX); Wrexall, "Memoirs of his own Time," ii. 90; and Nos. LXXI., LXXVI., LXXV.

Shelburne, Earl of, Marquis of Lansdowne. d. 1804.

He disclaimed the distinction, only a week before his death, on being personally applied to on the subject of Junius by the late Sir Richard Phillips. — WADE.

See also Barré and Dunning, ante.

Stanhope, Philip Dormer, Earl of Chesterfield. b. 1695; d. 1772.

Chesterfield was over seventy years of age when the Letters appeared, and Mr. Dilke, in the "Papers of a Critic," ii., states that he wrote to the Bishop of Waterford, — "I am prodigiously old, and every month of the calendar adds at least a year to my age. My hand trembles to that degree that I can hardly hold my pen. My understanding stutters and my memory fumbles."

See Nos. LV., LXXX., LXXXI.

Suett, Richard. d. 1805.

See No. LIII. A work described as "a clumsy display of wit and learning; the former consisting of stale anecdotes and ill-put jokes; the latter of looked-for quotations. To justify his satchpenny-title, about a dozen pages at the end are given to the author's interview with a dying stranger, who confessed himself to be Suett the comedian, and the author of Junius.

Temple, Richard, Earl. b. 1711; d. 1779.

The third volume of the "Grenville Papers," edited by William J. Smith (L. 1852), contains a discussion on the authenticity of the Junius Letters, with specimens of the handwriting of Richard Grenville, Lord Temple, et al., assuming the latter to be Junius, and his wife the amanuensis.

Mr. Wade very justly observes that "Earl Temple was not reputed by a discerning judge to be a writer of competent power to wing the shafts of Junius. . . . Temple was an active politician, a Peer of Parliament, and brother-in-law of Lord Chatham, and had no need of the 'Public Advertiser' to circulate his opinions." See No. LXIX.

Tooke, John Horne. b. 1736; d. 1812.

In the "Memoirs of John Horne Tooke," ii. 356, I find it stated that he always appeared much perturbed when the subject of Junius was introduced. He was once asked if he knew the author, and crossing his knife and fork on his plate and assuming a stern look, he answered, "I do." "After this," says Mr. Stephen, "his manner, tone, and attitude were all too formidable to admit of any further interrogatories." See Nos. VIII., XXVIII., XLIII., XLIV., LXV., LXVII.

Walpole, Horatio, Earl of Orford. b. 1717; d. 1797.

Coventry has thoroughly exploded any claims which this personage may have been invested with. See Wilke's "Papers of a Critic," ii. 153.

Wedderburn, Alexander. Lord Loughborough. b. 1733; d. 1805.

Lord Holland, in his "Memoirs of the Whig Party," remarks that George III. always regarded Lord Loughborough as Junius. I believe that Lord Holland adds that King William IV. was his informant.

Lord Campbell repudiates the notion of Wedderburn being Junius. Sir Nathaniel Wrexall, in his "Memoirs of his own Time" (ii. 97), states that "during many years of my life, notwithstanding the severity with which Wedderburn is treated by 'Junius,' I nourished a strong belief, approaching to conviction, that the late Earl of Rosslyn, then Mr. Wedderburn, was himself the author of these Letters, and that persons of credit had recognized the handwriting to be that of Mrs. Wedderburn, his first wife."

Wilkes, John. b. 1727; d. 1797.

It is said that a wag first propagated the report that Wilkes was Junius, in the columns of the "Gazetteer." He asserted that, while going over St. George's Fields, he picked up a piece of blotted MS., containing a portion of the last Junius Letter, which had been thrown out with the sweepings from King's Bench prison, where Wilkes was then a prisoner. A correspondent of the "Gent. Mag." (lix. 786) renewed the statement, but nothing in support of the hypothesis has been produced.

John Mason Good, in his preliminary essay, remarks, "that Wilkes is not the author must be clear to every one who will merely give a glance at either the public or the private letters. Wilkes could not have abused himself in the manner he is occasionally abused in the former; nor would he have said in the latter (since there was no necessity for his so saying), 'I have been out of town for three weeks,' at a time when he was closely confined in the King's Bench."

See Nos. VIII., XI.

Willmot, James, D.D. b. 1726; d. 1807.

Wm. Beckford, the author of "Vathek," is said in a conversation in the "New Monthly Magazine," to have expressed his opinion that Willmot was Junius, but he adduced no facts to prove his statement.

Probably the only other personage who believed in the claims of Willmot was his niece, the celebrated Olivia Willmot Serres, ci-devant Princess of Cumberland, and she was an impostor herself. See Nos. XXXIX., L.; the "Gent. Mag." for 1813 and 1814; and "Notes and Queries," 4th Ser., ii. 113.

Wray, Daniel. b. 1701; d. 1783.

Wray was Deputy Teller of the Exchequer by favor of the Hardwicke family. See Nichols' "Illustrations of Literary History"; "Notes and Queries," 2d Ser., ii. 164; and No. LXVIII.

ix. A Vindication of the D— of G— [i.e. the Duke of Grafton], in Answer to a Letter signed “Junius,” inserted in the “Public Advertiser” of Saturday, the 18th of March. L., Nicholl, 1769. 8vo.

x. Two Letters from Junius to the D— of G—, on the Sale of a Patent Place in the Customs at Exeter. To which is added, a Letter from Junius, containing an Address supposed to have been made to a Great Personage. Taken from the “Public Advertiser.” L. [no publisher’s name], December, 1769. 8vo.

xi. *An Address to Junius on his Letter in the “Public Advertiser,” Dec. 19, 1769. L. [no publisher’s name] 1769. 8vo.

A pamphlet, in which the letters are attributed to Wilkes. A second edition appeared in 1770.

xii. The Twelve Letters of Canana: on the impropriety of petitioning the King to dissolve the Parliament. L. [? a publisher’s name] 1770. 8vo.

A pamphlet of 44 pages, and exceedingly scarce. See also “Notes and Queries,” 2d Ser., vi. 44.

xiii. Two Remarkable Letters of Junius and the Freeholder, addressed to the K— [i.e. the King], with Answers and Strictures. L. [no publisher’s name] 1770. 8vo.

A pamphlet entitled “The King’s Answer to Junius” appeared in Philadelphia the following year.

xiv. Letters of Junius. Dublin [? a publisher’s name], 1770. 8vo.

A volume of 108 pages, and evidently a reprint of Almon’s collection of the early letters. See v., vi., and vii., ante.

xv. A complete Collection of Junius’s Letters, with those of Sir William Draper. L., A. Thomson, 1770. 8vo.

This publisher issued a second edition with the same title in March or April, 1770, which contained the letter of March 19th; a third edition in June, 1770, with the letters of April 3d and May 28th; and a fourth edition in August, 1770, which contained the letter of August 22d, addressed to Lord North.

xvi. Junius’s Political Axioms, addressed to twelve millions of People in Great Britain and Ireland. L., V. Griffith, s. a. [? 1770]. 8vo.

xvii. *The Letters of Junius. L. [no publisher’s name] 1770. 12mo.

This is J. Wheble’s original edition, but does not bear his name. There is a vignette Cap of Liberty on the title-page. This work served Junius as copy for his edition of 1772. It concludes with the Letter to Lord North, dated Aug. 22, 1770. The second edition appeared the same year, bore Wheble’s name on page 247, and ended with the letter to Mansfield dated Nov. 14, 1770. The first portion of the second volume also appeared toward the end of 1770; and the second portion, the following year. Wheble published two editions dated 1771, which must have appeared after Woodfall’s edition; as the first of them concludes with the note about Horne Tooke, and the second contains the Philo-Junius Letters, and a letter to Lord Apsley dated February, 1771!!! See also xxii. et seq.

xviii. Letters addressed to the King, the Duke of Grafton, the Earls of Chesterfield and Sandwich, Lord Barrington, Junius, and the Rev. Mr. Horne [Tooke], under the signature of “P. P. S.” L. [? a publisher’s name] 1771. 8vo.

xix. *An Answer to Junius, shewing his imaginary Ideas and false Principles, his wrong Positions and random Conclusions. L., Organ, 1771. 8vo.

xx. *The genuine Letters of Junius, to which are prefixed Anecdotes of the Author. Piccadilly [no publisher’s name], 1771. 8vo.

This is called the “Piccadilly Edition,” and contains 366 pages. Lowndes thinks, from internal evidence, that there was an earlier edition, dated 1770, and ending on page 265. The authorship is fathered on Burke.

xxi. *Junius. L., Woodfall, 1772. 2 vols. 12mo.

The first authorized edition, printed under the author’s inspection; preceded by a dedication of 10 pages, a preface of 22, and illustrated with notes. It was published March 3, 1772, without table of contents or index, but was re-issued about March, 1773, with both. Many years afterwards, the remaining copies of either this edition or a verbatim reprint appear to have been sold off, and the date erased by the purchaser from the title-page; which accounts for a supposed edition without date. — Lowndes.

Ewing, a Dublin publisher, issued a reprint of Woodfall’s edition this same year, and added fourteen new letters, either written by, or replied to by Junius.

See also “Notes and Queries,” 1st Ser., vi. 224, for a supposed edition of 1771.

xxii. The Letters of Junius. L., Wheble, 1772. 2 vols. 12mo.

[See xvii. ante.] The title-page of vol. 2 is struck off from the same copperplate, and “vol. 2” is introduced in type; and the MDCCLXXII. is turned into MDCCLXXIII. by the addition of L, also in type. This edition, or at least the second volume of it, could not have been published until after January 21, 1772, as it contains the letter to Lord Camden. — Lowndes.

Numerous editions of the Letters were published during the succeeding twenty years, none of which call for any special notice.

xxiii. The Rights of the Sailors vin-licated. In answer to a letter of Junius. L. [? a publisher's name] 1772. 8vo.

xxiv. [Hughes, Benjamin.] An Epistle to Junius. L. [? a publisher's name] 1774. 8vo.

xxv. *A serious Letter to the Public, on the late Transaction between Lord North and the Duke of Grafton. By Junius. L. [no publisher's name] 1778. 8vo.

A forgery, with which Junius had nothing to do.

xxvi. The Intrepid Magazine. L. 1784. 8vo.

Contains letters signed "Junius."

xxvii. Anecdotes of Junius: to which is prefixed the King's Reply. Southampton, Baker, 1788. 8vo.

These anecdotes are reprinted from the Piccadilly Edition of 1771.

xxviii. Junius discovered. By P. T., Esq. L., Fores, s. a. but 1789. 8vo.

Written by Philip Thicknesse, and in favor of Tooke.

xxix. *The Letters of Junius. A new edition with a copious index. L., Hamilton, 1792. 2 vols. 12mo.

The following editions also deserve passing mention:—

Bensley's, L. 1794, 2 vols., 12mo.

Campbell's, P. 1795, 16mo.

Mundell's, L. 1796, 8vo.

Bensley's, L. 1797, 2 vols., 8vo. [A few on L. P.]; L. 1798, 2 vols., 12mo and 8vo; L. 1799, 2 vols., 8vo.

Vernor & Hood's, L. 1800, 2 vols., 18mo; L. 1804, 1 vol., 18mo; L. 1806, 2 vols., 12mo.

Bensley's, L. 1801 and 1806, 2 vols., 8vo.

xxx. *Chalmers, George.—An Appendix to the Supplemental Apology... being the Documents for the Opinion that Hugh McAulay Boyd wrote Junius's Letters. L., 1800. 8vo.

xxxi. *The Letters of Junius, with Notes and Illustrations Historical, Political, Biographical, and Critical, by Robert Heron. L. 1802. 2 vols. 8vo.

An edition of this book was published in the same year, containing both volumes in one. A second edition, of two volumes, was published in 1804, containing 70 pages added to the preface of the first volume, and an appendix of 16 to the second. It was reprinted in Philadelphia and Boston the same year.

xxxii. *Almon, John.—The Letters of Junius Complete, with letters and articles to which he replied, and with notes biographical and explanatory; also a prefatory enquiry respecting the real author. L. 1806. 2 vols. 12mo.

The following editions appeared about this period:—

Ballantyne's, Edinb. 1807, 8vo.

Oddy's, L. 1811, 2 vols., 12mo.

Goodwin's, L. 1812, 2 vols., 12mo.

xxxiii. * [Girdlestone, Thomas.]—Reasons for rejecting the presumptive Evidence of Mr. Almon, that Mr. Hugh Boyd was the writer of Junius; with Passages selected to prove the real Author of the Letters of Junius. L. 1808. 8vo.

In favor of Major-General Charles Lee, of the American army.

xxxiv. [Fitzgerald, Mr.]—Another Guess at Junius, and a Dialogue in the Shades. L. 1809. 8vo.

In favor of William Pitt, Earl of Chatham.

xxxv. *Draper, Sir W.—Letters to Junius. L. 1812. 8vo.

A defence of the Earl of Granby and General Gansell.

xxxvi. *The Letters of Junius, including Letters by the same Writer, under other Signatures (now first collected). To which are added; his confidential Correspondence with Mr. Wilkes, and his private Letters addressed to H. S. Woodfall, with a preliminary Essay [by J. Mason Good, M.D.], Notes, etc. L., Woodfall, 1812. 3 vols. 8vo.

This edition was edited by George Woodfall; and copies are also found on Large Paper. It was reprinted in Philadelphia the following year, in two volumes, 8vo.

xxxvii. *Girdlestone, Dr. Thomas.—Facts tending to prove that General Lee was never absent from this Country for any length of time, during the years 1767, 1768, 1769, 1770, 1771, 1772, and that he was the Author of Junius. L. 1813. 8vo.

xxxviii. *Roche, John.—An Inquiry concerning the Author of the Letters of Junius; in which it is proved, by internal, as well as by direct and satisfactory Evidence, that they were written by the late Right Hon. Edmund Burke. L. 1813. 8vo.

xxxix. *Serres, Olivia Wilmot.—The Life of the Author of the Letters of Junius, the Rev. James Wilmot, D.D. By his niece. L. 1813. 8vo.

xli. *Duppa, Richard.—Memoirs of a celebrated literary and political Character, from 1742 to 1757, containing strictures of some of the most distinguished men of that time. L. 1818. 8vo.

In favor of Richard Glover.

XLII. *Duppa, Richard. — An Inquiry concerning the author of the Letters of Junius, with reference to the Memoirs by a celebrated Literary and Political Character. L. 1814. 8vo.

In favor of Richard Glover. A second edition, in which further extracts from curious Mac. memoirs were added, was published in the same year.

XLIII. *Blakeway, Rev. J. B. — An Attempt to ascertain the Authors of the Letters published under the signature of Junius. Shrewsbury, 1813. 8vo.

In favor of John Horne Tooke.

XLIV. Blakeway, Rev. J. B. — Sequel of an Attempt to discover Junius. L. 1816. 8vo.

In favor of John Horne Tooke.

XLV. *The Letters of Junius. L., Woodfall, 1814. 3 vols. 8vo.

This is Woodfall's second edition; containing several slight variations, and omitting the four pages of advertisement which occur in the edition of 1812.

XLVI. *Busby, Thomas. — Arguments and Facts demonstrating that the Letters of Junius were written by John Lewis De Lolme, author of the "History of the British Constitution," accompanied with Memoirs of that "most distinguished foreigner." L. 1816. 8vo.

XLVII. * [Johnston, A. G.] — Letters to a Nobleman, proving a late Prime Minister to have been Junius; and developing the secret motives which induced him to write under that and other signatures. With an Appendix, containing a celebrated case published by Almon in 1768. L. 1816. 8vo.

In favor of the Duke of Portland.

XLVIII. * [Taylor, John.] — The identity of Junius with a Distinguished Living Character established. With a Supplement, containing fac-similes of handwriting and other illustrations. L. 1816. 8vo.

In favor of Sir Philip Francis. A second and enlarged edition of this work appeared in 1818, and a third in 1823. The same author also published a supplement in 1817, consisting of fac-similes of handwriting, etc.; and a second edition of the later appeared in the following year. See also "Notes and Queries," 1st Ser., i. 103, 258.

XLIX. *Chalmers, George. — The Author of Junius ascertained from a concatenation of circumstances amounting to Moral Demonstration. L. 1817. 8vo.

An attempt to prove conclusively, by comparative handwriting, that Sir Philip Francis was the author of the letters.

IV. Some Miscellaneous Observations.

Here end my researches in the history of Junius, and in conclusion I shall place before the reader three quotations, from which he can choose as he wishes, and endeavor to settle this knotty question to his own satisfaction.

The first is from the introductory epistle to Scott's "Fortunes of Nigel," in which the author says:—

"A cause, however ingeniously pleaded, is not therefore gained. You may remember the neatly-wrought chain of circumstantial evidence so artificially brought forward to prove Sir Philip Francis's title to the Letters of Junius seemed at first irrefragable, yet the influence of the reasoning has passed away, and Junius, in the general opinion, is as much unknown as ever."

Lord Byron had evidently arrived at no very definite conclusion in respect to the authorship, for in his "Vision of Judgment" Junius appears among the shades, and is as inscrutable as he was on earth:—

"And several people swore from out the press,
They knew him perfectly; and one could swear
He was his father: upon which another
Was sure he was his mother's cousin's brother.

"I've an hypothesis—'tis quite my own;
I never let it out till now, for fear
Of doing people harm about the throne,
And injuring some minister or peer
On whom the stigma might perhaps be blown;
It is—my gentle public, lend thine ear!
'Tis, that what Junius we were wont to call
Was really, truly, nobody at all."

Lastly, I cannot refrain from quoting the excellent view of the influence of Junius' labors as depicted by Messrs. Parkes and Merivale in their "Life of Sir Philip Francis," to wit:—

"That Junius can only be described with truth as a political adventurer there is no doubt. It is plain enough that his own personal success in life was involved in that of the party whose cause he adopted, or, to speak still more accurately, in the fall of the party which he attacked. And it is equally true that he was utterly unscrupulous in his use of means; that his sincerity, even when he was sincere, was apt to assume the form of the most ignoble rancor, and that no ties of friendship, or party, or connection, seem to have restrained his virulence. All this is but too deducible from the published anonymous writings only . . . But when all this has been said, there remains a residue of a higher order, which must in justice to him be fairly weighed in the balance. Notwithstanding all his sins against justice and truth, Junius was assuredly actuated at bottom by a strong and ardent public spirit. He was throughout a genuine lover of his country. He was earnest in behalf of her honor and of her liberties. He saw clearly that her road to the accomplishment of a higher destiny lay through the maintenance of that honor and the extension of those liberties. He hated with an honest hatred the meanness of principle and venality of conduct which characterized but too strongly the governments against which he fought, and tarnished the political genius of his time. And very remarkable was the success which attended his struggle against them. Great indeed were the practical victories achieved by the efforts of this nameless, obscure agitator. Freedom of the press and the personal freedom of the subject owe probably more to the writings of Junius than to the eloquence of Chatham or Burke, the law of Camden and Dunning. It is not too much to say that after the appearance of those writings, a new tone on these great subjects is found to prevail in our political literature. Doctrines which had previously met with almost general consent became exploded, truths which up to that time had been only timidly propounded were placed, in post-Junian times, on the order of the day. It is no doubt very true that he was only fighting in the van of an advancing cause, and that these public benefits would as certainly have been secured to us if Junius had never written. But it is just as certain that America would have been discovered had Columbus never existed; yet no one, therefore, contests the greatness of Columbus or the obligations under which mankind lies towards him."

And with this ends the history and bibliography of Junius.

Lot, Parson. Rev. Charles Kingsley.

"It was at one of these gatherings" at Mr. Maurice's, "towards the end of 1847 or early in 1848, when Kingsley found himself in a minority of one, that he said jokingly, he felt much as Lot must have felt in the Cities of the Plain when he seemed as one that mocked to his sons-in-law. The name 'Parson Lot' was then and there suggested, and adopted by him as a familiar nom de plume. He used it from 1848 up to 1856; at first constantly, latterly much more rarely. But the name was chiefly made famous by his writings in 'Politics for the People,' the 'Christian Socialist,' and the 'Journal of Association,' three periodicals which covered the years from '48 to '62, by 'Alton Locke,' and by tracts and pamphlets, of which the best known is 'Cheap Clothes and Nasty.'

In the Rev. Sydney Smith's speech at Taunton, on the Lords' rejection of the Reform Bill, October, 1831, is this passage:—

"The attempt of the Lords to stop the progress of reform, reminds me very forcibly of the great storm of Sidmouth, and of the conduct of excellent Mrs. Partington on that occasion. In the winter of 1824, there set in a great flood upon that town, the tide rose to an incredible height, the waves rushed upon the houses, and everything was threatened with destruction. In the midst of this sublime and terrible storm, Dame Partington, who lived upon the beach, was seen at the door of her house with mop and pattens, trundling her mop, squeezing out the sea-water, and vigorously pushing away the Atlantic Ocean. The Atlantic was roused, Mrs. Partington's spirit was up; but I need not tell you that the contest was unequal. The Atlantic Ocean beat Mrs. Partington. She was excellent at a slop or a puddle, but she should not have meddled with a tempest."

Poplicola. The earliest signature adopted by Junius (q.v.). The attack on Lord Chatham, which was signed as above, was published in the "Public Advertiser," April 28, 1767. The signature was only once more employed, viz. in the letter dated May 28, 1767, which was the celebrated reply to Sir William Draper's defence of Lord Chatham.

Poplicola, in April, 1767, depicts Lord Chatham as aspiring to a political dictatorship, and that the Tarpelan rock or a gibbet would be enough for the "carcase of such a traitor." But observe the contrast: Junius, in a letter addressed to the Earl of Chatham in the following January, marked "private and secret, to be opened by Lord Chatham only," sets himself forth as a warm admirer of that statesman, and anxiously cautions him against the underhand practices of his colleagues, especially of Lord Northampton and Mr. Conway, concluding as follows:—

"My Lord, the man who presumes to give your Lordship these hints admires your character without servility, and is convinced that, if this country can be saved, it must be saved by Lord Chatham's spirit, by Lord Chatham's abilities."—"Correspondence of the Earl of Chatham," vol. iii., p. 305.

Upon this Wade remarks:—

"So that the 'dictator' of Poplicola is the saviour of Junius, both one writer. Impossible! Who then, it may be asked, was Poplicola? a question probably not very material to answer if he were not Junius. But I will mention one conjecture by an American editor, namely, that Poplicola was Horne Tooke, which seems not unlikely. About this period Mr. Horne Tooke returned from a tour in Italy as travelling tutor; on his way he spent some weeks with Mr. Wilkes in Paris, and imbibed his rancour against Grafton and Chatham; the latter, in the full bloom of place, peerage, and pension, having haughtily rejected Wilkes's application for compensation or public employment, and disowned his quondam friend 'as the blasphemer of his God and libeller of his king.' In retaliation, Wilkes addressed a bitter, inculpatory letter to the Duke of Grafton, and Mr. Tooke is surmised to have lent his auxiliary aid by the two letters signed 'Poplicola.'"

Rain-Water Doctor, The.

"Was a German who landed in Philadelphia in the early part of the year 1811, and went shortly to Brooklyn, N.Y., where he remained for about a year. In 1812 he removed to Providence, R.I., where he had a large practice; then went, in 1813, to East Hartford, Conn., where he enjoyed an extraordinary success, but again returned to Providence, and died there in 1814-15. He was an educated physician, honest, skilful, extremely eccentric, and noted for many deeds of charity. While he resided in the village of Brooklyn he was consulted by thousands from the city of New York and from Long Island. The recommendation to all his patients to use rain-water as a drink won for him the cognomen of the 'Rain-Water Doctor.' Although he gave himself no distinct name, he sometimes signed himself 'Sylvan, Enemy of human diseases.'—See STILES's "Hist. of Brooklyn, N.Y.," Vol. I., p. 303.

"He must not be confounded with his evident imitators. The 'Rain-Water Doctor,' alias Sylvan Gardner, who flourished awhile about 1817 at Roxbury, Mass., and elsewhere (see 'Hist. Mag.' Royce, Ashley Allen. Nathaniel Hawthorne, in the "Salem Gazette," and the "New England Magazine."

Mr. Lathrop says of the "Twice Told Tales," "The earlier pieces appeared in the 'Salem Gazette' newspaper and in the 'New England Magazine' (published in Boston from 1831 to 1834). Sometimes they bore the author's real name, and sometimes a pseudonym was attached. Several among them purported to have been written by 'Ashley Allen Royce,' or the 'Rev. A. A. Royce.' Another pen-name used by the young romancer was 'Oberon,' the choice of which may be explained by the fact that, as the late Henry W. Longfellow recalled, some of the college friends of Hawthorne have nicknamed him 'Oberon,' in allusion to his personal beauty and the imaginative tone of his conversation."

Runnymede. Benjamin Disraeli, Earl of Beaconsfield.

In 1836, "A series of letters . . . appeared in the 'Times,' signed 'Runnymede,' which were in professed imitation of 'Junius's Letters,' but which could only be compared to them in point of violence and personality. These letters were written by D'Israeli, and contained fierce and unscrupulous attacks upon Lord Melbourne's government. Lord John Russell is called 'an infinitely small scarabæus, an insect'; Lord Palmerston and Grant, 'two sleek and long-tailed rats'; and Lord William Bentinck (. . . who had just returned from the government of India), 'one of those mere leeches of debilitated humanity and exhausted nature which the winds periodically waft to the hopeless breezes of their native cliffs,—a drivelling Nabob, of weak and perplexed mind and grovelling spirit.' The appearance of the Marquis of Lansdowne is described as 'the ox-like form of the Lansdowne Apis'; and O'Connell as 'towering, like a crocodile, above, above them all.' These letters were, in August, 1836, reprinted in a volume entitled, 'The Letters of Runnymede,' and dedicated to the late Sir Robert Peel."—See ANDREWS'S "British Journalism," vol. 2, p. 223.

Temple, Neville. The Hon. Julian Charles Henry Fane. Tannhäuser; or, the battle of the bards (1861), conjointly with "Edward Trevor" (pseud.), q.v.

The authorship, which was intended to be a profound secret, was discovered by Fane's use of his family motto, "Ne Vile Fano," as a pseudonym.

In his "Julian Fane, a Memoir" (1871, p. 173), Lord Lytton writes as follows: "The little poem of 'Tannhäuser,' which, whilst at Vienna, he [Fane] published under a feigned name, and which was written in conjunction with myself, grew naturally out of his enthusiasm for . . . Wagner's great opera of 'Tannhäuser.'" He then, after explaining that the pseudonym "Neville Temple" refers to the motto of the Fanes, ne vile fano, proceeds to give in full those parts of the poem which were composed by Fane.

Acorn. James Oakes.

In the Boston "Sunday Herald" for Dec. 7, 1884, is an article called "Passing Away," which gives an account of "The Place where the 'Scarlet Letter' was written." In this article a bit of information is given about James Oakes. He was something of a literary man, a good theatrical critic, and wrote for the Boston "Post" and New York papers over the signature of "Acorn." He was a friend of Edwin Forrest.

Agricola. Rev. Percival Stockdale.

In the summer of 1779, Rev. Percival Stockdale wrote several political letters with the signature "Agricola." They were published by Mr. H. S. Woodfall in the "Public Advertiser."

"Literary Anecdotes of 18th Century," Nichols, Vol. VIII., p. 23, note at foot. The opening of the note is on p. 18, and is signed on p. 29 as "J. P." The next sentence says written by Jane Porter.

Alphonso. John Nichols.

In August, 1778, John Nichols became associated with David Henry in the management of the "Gent. Mag.," and from that time not a single month elapsed in which he did not write several articles in that miscellany, some with his own name or his initials, and some anonymously. A note to the above says, under these signatures, "Alphonso" = John Nichols; "Eugenio" = John Nichols; "M. Green" = John Nichols; "A London Antiquary" = John Nichols; "J. N." = John Nichols. — "Literary Anecdotes of 18th Century," Nichols, Vol. VI., p. 628 and note.

Goldsmith is believed to have written the "History of Little Goody Two Shoes . . . From the original Ms. in the Vatican at Rome, the cuts by Michael Angelo." L.

Angeloni, Battista, a Jesuit. John Shebbeare, M.D.

Indeed that gentleman, whatever objections were made to him, had knowledge and abilities much above the class of ordinary writers, and deserves to be remembered as a respectable name in literature, were it only for his admirable "Letters on the English Nation," under the name of "Battista Angeloni, a Jesuit." This was John Shebbeare, in 1735. — Boswell's "Life of Johnson," edition of London (Bell), 1876, Vol. VIII., p. 90, year 1781.

Anti-Janus. Dr. Phil Hergenroether. An historico-theological criticism of "The Pope and the Council," by "Janus." N.Y. 1871.

Anti-Sejanus. James Scott.

Dr. James Scott wrote, in 1766, the letters signed "Anti-Sejanus," which were published in the "Public Advertiser," and were so popular that they raised the sale of the paper from 1500 to 3000 a day . . . There are likewise some others signed "Philangia," written by Dr. Scott. — Nichols, "Literary Anecdotes of 18th Century," Vol. IX., p. 726.

[NOTES BY MR. A. B. FREY.]

I have before me a book with the following title, "Six Old Plays," on which Shakspeare founded his "Measure for Measure." "Comedy of Errors," "Taming of the Shrew," "King John," "King Henry IV. and V.," and "King Lear." Two Vols. bound in one. L. 1779. Sometimes called "Nichols Steevens' edition." In it I find several initials, and I have looked them up with the following result. The first play is,— "Historye of Promus and Cassandra," by Geo. Whetstones. It opens with an address by the author, and signed with his name. Then follows "The Printer to the Reader," signed "R. I." In Collier's "Shakspeare Library," edited by Hazlitt, I find that this "R. I."—Richard Jones, who printed the edition of the play in 1578. His whole name appears at the close of the play in the above book.

The next play is "Menæmeni," a pleasant and fine concealed comedie, taken out of the most excellent wittie poet, Plautus . . . written in English by W. W. London, 1596. "W. W." says Knight, in his introductory notice to the "Comedy of Errors" (on the authority of Wood) was William Warner.

Born, probably 1658; died, March 9 or 10, 1808-9. Allibone, under William Warner.

The next play is the "First and Second Part of the Troublesome Reign of John, King of England," etc., written by W. Sh. Imprinted by Valentine Simmes for John Helme, 1611.

"W. Sh." = William Shakespeare, but I find "On the title of the reprint of 1611, the bookseller placed the initials W. Sh., ostensibly for the purpose of creating a belief that the play was Shakespeare's."—See "Shakespeare's Library," by COLLIER, edited by Hazlitt, Pt. II., Vol. I., p. 222; edition London, 1875.

Next comes the "Taming of a Shrew," printed by V. S. for Nicholas Ling.

"V. S." = Valentine Simmes (a printer), who printed "King John."

Here ends all the initials that I find in the "Six Old Plays, etc.," but I find a reference to another initial.

"The Whole Contention between the two Famous Houses, Lancaster and York. With the Tragical end of the good Duke Humphrey, Richard, Duke of York, and King Henrie the sixt. Divided into two Parts, and newly corrected and enlarged. Written by William Shakspeare, Gent. Printed at London, for T. P."

This contains the "First Part of the Contention" as well as the "True Tragedie." "T. P." was Thomas Pavier, the publisher of other plays.

See "Shakspeare's Library," Collier, edited by Hazlitt, Pt. II., Vol. I., p. 386. L. 1875.

Jacobus, G. P. R. G. P. R. James.—See "Painsworth, W. Harassing."

Jacques, Robert W. Ewing, a severe censor of the stage under this signature during the years 1825 and '26.

Jennings, Thomas, Soda Water Manufacturer. William Maginn. Letter from . . . Cork, 1820, and a dirge over Sir Daniel Donnelly; by . . . in "Blackwood's Magazine," Vol. VII., pp. 199, 200.

Johnny the Bear. John Abernethy.

"Has any one who knows Johnny the Bear heard his name thus anagrammatised without a smile? We may be sure he smiled and growled at the same time when he first heard it himself."—SOUTHERN'S "Doctor," ch. clixix., p. 468.

Junius Redivivus. William Bridges Adams. A tale of Tucuman, with digressions, English and American [a political poem]. L. 1831. He also contributed "On the Working Classes" to Tait's "Edinburgh Magazine," 1834, pp. 79, 701.

Keen, Royal. F. F. Schrader, in his contributions to various Western periodicals.

Kettle, Ross Mackenzie. Mary Rosa Stuart Kettle. The Carding-Mill Valley. L. 1882.

L., A. H. Alexander H. Laidlaw, M.D., in contributions to Philadelphia journals, 1854, etc.

Author of an English dictionary, in which demote appears for the first time as opposite of promote.

Laboring Man, A. Thomas Robinson Hazard. Facts for the laboring man. By . . . Newport, R.I., 1840.

Lady, A. Mrs. Hannah Glass. The art of cookery. L. 1747.

This is ascribed, not only to Dr. John Hill, but also to the witty Dr. William King.
